Introduction

This document sets out minimum standards for day care settings whether provided by the independent¹ or statutory sectors. The standards specify the arrangements, facilities and procedures that need to be in place to ensure the delivery of a quality service.

These standards apply to:

- Day care settings defined under The Health and Personal Social Services (Quality, Improvement and Regulation) (Northern Ireland) Order 2003 (the 2003 Order)² as:

“a place where persons in need of prescribed services may attend for the purposes of assessment, rehabilitation or counselling but where they are not provided with board or accommodation”;

(Note: prescribed services are the provision of personal care);

- Day care delivered in a residential care or nursing home setting, as appropriate; and
- Services provided as outreach from a day care setting, as relevant and appropriate.

These services are targeted at persons aged 18 years and over.

They are designed to meet the assessed needs of individuals for care, support, supervision or rehabilitation by reason of mental illness, functional impairment, cognitive impairment, learning disability, ill-health, age, family, or life circumstances.

These standards do not apply to luncheon clubs and similar activities.

¹ For the purposes of these standards, the independent sector is comprised of private, voluntary, community and social enterprise providers.

² The 2003 Order can be accessed at: <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/nisi/2003/431/contents/made>

Day care settings are among the establishments and agencies required to register with the Regulation, Quality and Improvement Authority (RQIA).³

These standards should be read in the context of the Day Care Setting Regulations (Northern Ireland) 2007.⁴ The standards reflect the content of the regulations and provide more specific detail where appropriate. They also reflect certain requirements of other legislation relevant to running a day care setting, including areas such as safeguarding, health and safety and the recruitment of staff. The standards are the minimum provisions below which no provider is expected to operate.

The standards will be used by:

- Service commissioners, for the planning, commissioning, quality assurance, performance management and service review;
- Service providers, to benchmark the quality of the service they provide and to improve quality for service users;
- Service users and their representatives, to inform them of what they can and should reasonably expect from day services and from the organisations and individuals commissioning and providing them;
- Staff, to inform them of the principles underpinning the standards; of the requirements for needs assessment, care planning, service delivery and review; and of what they can and should reasonably expect from the organisations employing them;
- RQIA, as the basis for their inspections and to ensure all day care settings comply with the criteria set out to achieve and

³ Established under the 2003 Order, the RQIA is an independent body with responsibility for and powers to regulate a wide range of care services provided by the statutory and independent sectors. The RQIA also has overall responsibility for monitoring, regulating and reporting on the quality of health and social care services delivered in Northern Ireland. Further information about the services regulated by, and the work of, the RQIA can be accessed through: <http://www.rqia.org.uk>

⁴ The Day Care Setting Regulations (Northern Ireland) can be accessed at: <http://www.legislation.gov.uk/nisr/2007/234/contents/made> maintain their registration and to encourage improvement in the quality of services provided; and

- Members of the public, to understand how day care services work and the important contribution they make to supporting individuals to live in their own homes for as long as it is appropriate and safe for them to do so.

The minimum standards for day care settings were developed by the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (DHSSPS) in partnership with all key stakeholders, and were subject to full public consultation. They have also been reviewed to ensure they fully reflect current policy and legislative requirements.

The terms “day care setting”; “day service”; “service”; and “day care” are used interchangeably throughout the document.

The term “service user” which means the individual directly in receipt of services (sometimes also referred to as a client, attendee or member) is also taken to include that person’s representative (who may be a carer, relative, friend, or a formally recognised advocate) as appropriate in the context of the standard and its support criteria.

Values underpinning the standards

The philosophy and practice within a day care setting should lead to a friendly, caring and stimulating atmosphere where service users are listened to and feel valued, their rights are upheld, their cultural and religious beliefs are respected and participation in day care is a positive and beneficial experience. In order to achieve this, managers and staff working in day care must at all times have the following values firmly embedded in their practice.

Fulfilment

Service users are enabled and supported to lead full and purposeful lives and realise their ability and potential.

Dignity and Respect

The uniqueness and intrinsic value of individual service users is acknowledged and each person is treated with respect.

Independence

Service users have as much control as possible over their lives whilst being protected against unreasonable risks.

Rights

The individual and human rights of service users are safeguarded and actively promoted within the context of services delivered.

Equality and Diversity

Service users are treated equally, their background and culture are valued, and services provided fit within a framework of equal opportunities and anti-discriminatory practice.

Choice

Service users are offered, wherever possible, the opportunity to select independently from a range of options based on clear and accurate information.

Consent

Service users have a legal right to determine what happens to them and their informed, genuine and valid consent to the care and support they receive is essential.

Safety

Service users feel as safe as possible in all aspects of their care and support, and are free from abuse, exploitation or neglect.

Confidentiality

Service users know that information about them is managed appropriately and everyone involved in and with the day care setting respects confidential matters.

When these values are fully integrated into all aspects of planning, delivery and review of services, and the minimum standards are being met, the day care setting will be a resource that delivers the best possible outcomes for its service users.

How the standards and regulations work together

The regulations for day care settings were published by the DHSSPS in accordance with Article 23 of the 2003 Order, which sets out the range of areas for which regulations may make provision. These include the management, staff, premises, financial position and conduct of health and social care establishments and agencies.

Article 38 of the 2003 Order gives powers to the DHSSPS to publish minimum standards that the RQIA must take into account in its regulation of establishments and agencies.

Minimum standards are the means by which the regulations are put into practice. Compliance with the regulations is mandatory and non-compliance with some specific regulations is considered an offence. The RQIA must take into account the extent to which the minimum standards have been met in determining whether or not a service gains registration; maintains registration; or has its registration cancelled, or whether to take action for breach of regulations.

The standard statements and associated criteria cover key areas of service provision and are designed to be measurable through self-assessment and inspection. The RQIA will look for evidence that the standards are being met through:

- Discussions with service users, managers, staff and others;
- Observation of activities in, and associated with, the day care setting; and
- Inspection of written policies, procedures and records.

SECTION 1

MINIMUM STANDARDS

Quality care⁵

These standards have been drafted to meet the needs of all adult client groups. While maintenance is a reasonable objective for rehabilitation and re-ablement services, the standards take account, as far as possible, of the changing emphasis for day care in that it should be viewed as a stepping stone to independence rather than as a service for life. A key principle within these standards is that people in receipt of services must be central in all aspects of planning, delivery, and review of their care. Service users will experience quality care and support when they are fully informed and enabled to participate to the fullest extent in decision making affecting their lives, and in the planning and evaluation of services.

Having an open, responsive and caring approach in a day care setting, is paramount to the delivery of quality services. These minimum standards should empower service users and strongly encourage a proactive engagement and a real partnership with them to ensure they feel fully involved in the operation of the service. The use of informal feedback mechanisms; more formal arrangements; and, where necessary, enlisting local advocacy services to gain the views of service users will provide managers and staff with essential information about improvements that can be made. Listening to and responding to compliments, comments and complaints will also be important in this regard.

Maintaining a good relationship with the local community is very important and helps service users build and retain their positive sense of worth. Service users generally benefit from community-based programmes with opportunities to develop skills for life and work. Programmes should be interesting, fulfilling and creative; provide opportunities that reflect service user interests; and have variety, spontaneity and flexibility. Staff who have knowledge of and a respect for service users' interests and preferred lifestyle and who

⁵ Improving the Patient & Client experience (DHSSPS, November 2008) sets out Standards in relation to five areas that have been identified as important towards ensuring a positive patient or client experience. It also provides a number of examples of activities that could be used to support monitoring processes, and can be accessed at:

http://www.dhsspsni.gov.uk/improving_the_patient_and_client_experience.pdf

listen and respond to service users' suggestions will be best placed to develop such programmes.

Before starting to attend the day care setting, prospective service users and their relatives need information about the service provided. They can gain this through visiting the setting and talking to other service users; consulting staff and management; and reading the "Service Users' Guide" and reports made by RQIA. To enable service users to retain the maximum amount of control over their own affairs, day care settings are expected to provide all relevant information in formats suitable for them. It is vitally important, therefore, that day care settings are clear from the outset as to what they offer; about who is eligible; about what is expected and appropriate; and about what outcomes can be achieved. Individual agreements will clarify what is expected for each service user.

Day care is part of the overall provision of services within a community. The provision of a seamless service with timely interventions is most effective when there is a collaborative multi-disciplinary partnership between service users and all who are involved in their care and support. In order to achieve maximum benefit and positive outcomes for service users, the interdependency between all involved should be recognised. Those providing care for a service user need to understand the service user's perspective and each other's roles and responsibilities; respect and value each other; share information responsibly; and respond appropriately when contacted.

The standards emphasise the right of service users to full involvement in all aspects of assessment, care planning and review. The right of service users to make decisions about their care and support is stressed, and there must be evidence of the service user's active involvement in person-centred needs assessment, care planning and review processes. These are the key mechanisms for empowering service users and ensuring a partnership between the service user and staff.

It is also acknowledged that the manager of a day care setting does not normally have control of the full needs assessment, care planning and review processes for service users attending day care, but he or she has a vital role in these processes. The day care setting must therefore have joint working arrangements with the community care teams that are responsible for the service user's overall care, and who make referrals for day care services. These teams are responsible for providing essential information to the day care setting prior to the service user beginning to attend and for the transition plan for the individual, or a new service user. They also normally hold responsibility for the review systems. Planning for the service user to leave the day care setting is addressed through the review process and needs to be given consideration at the relevant time.

Against this background, staff in day care settings need to have knowledge of the general health and social care needs of their service users. Staff through their practices and interventions should promote the health and well-being of service users. Staff need to get to know and treat service users as individuals; this will enable them to provide effective and personalised care and support for each person. The need for ongoing assessment and identification of risks by staff and service users is also necessary. However, for service users to maintain as much autonomy and independence as possible there needs to be a balance between managing the reasonable risks of normal living and ensuring the well-being of service users and of others.

Guidance issued about quality initiatives and the provision of quality support and care will assist managers and staff to keep up to date with current best practice, which they can incorporate into their practices and programmes. Day care settings committed to meeting the minimum standards and continual improvement will provide fulfilling life opportunities, best care and support and the agreed outcomes for service users.

Information

Standard 1: Day services have an accessible introductory information pack for prospective service users.

Criteria

- 1.1 Prospective service users are given a Service Users' Guide which provides up to date information about the service.
- 1.2. The Service Users' Guide is available in a format and language suitable for each prospective service user and contains information on the following:
- A summary of the statement of purpose setting out the aims and objectives of the service, its philosophy of care, the services and facilities it provides and the range of needs it is designed to meet;
 - The location and description of the service;
 - The name of the registered manager and the general staffing arrangements;
 - The current programme of activities;
 - The fees or charges payable (if any) and required payment method for services, facilities or activities;
 - The arrangements for service user involvement in the running of the service;
 - General feedback from current service users about the quality of the service and its facilities;
 - The general terms of attendance at the day service, including arrangements for any trial placement and its review; and the service user's rights and responsibilities whilst using the service and the consequences of unacceptable behaviour;
 - The arrangements for inspection of the service and details on how to access inspection reports;
 - The address and telephone number of RQIA;
 - A summary of the complaints procedure;
 - Details about the organisation, its structure and the name of the registered person;

- The referral process; and
- The standard form of agreement for the provision of care and facilities by the service which underpins entry to, participation in and discharge from it.

Introduction to the day care setting

Standard 2: There is a planned introduction to the service for each service user.

Criteria

- 2.1. The registered person shall ensure that:
- The needs of the service user have been assessed by a suitably qualified or suitably trained person;⁶
 - The day care setting has a copy of the assessment;
 - There has been appropriate consultation regarding the assessment with the service user;
 - The service is appropriate to the service user's needs; and
 - Written confirmation has been provided to the service user that the service is suited to his or her needs in advance of any placement; and this sets out the joining arrangements, including the requirement for any trial placement and its review.
- 2.2 Where possible, the registered manager or a member of staff visits the prospective service user prior to him or her commencing attendance.
- 2.3 Arrangements are in place for prospective service users to visit the service and assess its suitability before attending. When this does not happen, the reason is recorded.
- 2.4 The registered manager ensures that all necessary referral information is received before the service user commences attendance. This includes:
- A person-centred assessment of need,⁷ including, as appropriate, physical health; mental health;

⁷ The Northern Ireland Single Assessment Tool (NISAT), which has been developed and validated primarily in relation to assessing the needs of older people, supports the exercise of awareness and decision-making skills; emotional well-being; capacity for the activities of daily living and self care (including medicines management and any particular dietary requirements); mobility; communication and sensory functioning abilities (including attitudes toward any disability); lifestyle (including living arrangements and how the day is spent); the contribution of informal carers; social network support (including cultural and spiritual needs) and housing; finance; and environmental factors;

- Relevant life history and future goals and wishes;
- Any risk assessments relating to each service user and the delivery of his or her care and services;
- A separate assessment of the service user's transport as set out in Standard 12;
- The objectives and expected outcomes from attendance with (where relevant) associated time frames in the form of an initial Care Plan which is agreed, signed and dated by the service user. Where the service user is unable or chooses not to sign any document, this should be recorded and the basis of his or her agreement to participate noted;⁸
- Information about, and contact details for, other professionals or agencies providing services to the service user; and
- Up to date contact details for the referral agent.⁹

professional judgement in the care management process and the earliest possible provision of safe and effective health and social care. NISAT is designed to capture the information required for holistic, person-centred assessment. It is structured in component parts and using domains which will be completed according to the level of health and social care needs experienced, from non-complex to complex. Information about NISAT can be accessed at: <http://www.dhsspsni.gov.uk/index/hss/ec-community-care/ec-northern-ireland-single-assessment-tool.htm>

⁸ The need for service users to sign and date documents, e.g. assessments, individual agreements and care plans, etc (and any revision thereof) is referenced throughout these standards. This practice is taken as an indicator of the service user's active participation in these processes.

⁹ Referral agent means the person or body responsible for referring the service user to the day service, and who is responsible for providing initial assessment and referral information, formal care reviews and for general oversight of the effectiveness of the service in meeting the service

- 2.5 The registered manager checks that any documents received from the referral agent are appropriately signed and dated when received, and contacts the referral agent where any document is not.
- 2.6 For any exceptional, unplanned situations, all necessary referral information is obtained or completed within two working days of the service user commencing attendance.
- 2.7 A named member of staff is identified to provide support for the service user during the introductory period, and a key worker from the staff team is identified subsequently.

user's needs. This responsibility also extends to discharge from the service and arranging for the provision of any after care needed. HSC Trusts take a primary role as referral agents to many day services.

Individual agreement

Standard 3: Each service user has an individual written agreement detailing the services to be provided.

Criteria

- 3.1 Each service user is provided with an individual written agreement, which, having regard to the assessment of need, confirms the day service is suitable and appropriate to his or her needs, and sets out:
- The care, services and facilities provided to the service user;
 - The objectives for, and expected outcomes from, attendance, with, where appropriate, associated time frames;
 - The respective rights and responsibilities of both the service user and the day service with reference to relevant policies and procedures as necessary (Standard 18);
 - The start date and the sessions/days of attendance;
 - The arrangements related to any trial placement and its review;
 - The agreed transport arrangements aimed at maximising independence (Standard 12);
 - Any fees or charges payable, and the arrangements for payment of these;
 - The arrangements for management of any financial transactions undertaken on behalf of the service user (Standard 11);
 - The arrangements for reviewing the placement, assessment of need and associated care plans;
 - The arrangements for regularly reviewing the agreement, and the circumstances when the agreement can be reviewed outside these arrangements; and
 - The period of notice for terminating the agreement.

- 3.2 The agreement is presented in a format and language suitable for the service user and is signed and dated by the service user and the registered manager. Where the service user is unable or chooses not to sign any document, this should be recorded and the basis of his or her agreement to participate noted.
- 3.3 The agreement is in place before the service user starts at the day care setting, or if this is not possible, it is in place within the first five full days of attending the setting.
- 3.4 The service user is given written notice of all changes to the agreement and these are agreed in writing by the service user.
- 3.5 The service user is notified at least 28 days in advance of any increase or variation in fees or charges payable, or changes in the method of payment or to whom they are payable.

Needs assessment

Standard 4: Each service user has an up to date assessment of his or her needs with regard to the services provided.

Criteria

- 4.1 Service users are encouraged and enabled to participate in the person-centred assessment process, but when a service user is unable or chooses not to this is recorded. The assessment process should involve other relevant professionals and disciplines and, where safe and appropriate, the views of others who have an interest in the service user's well-being.
- 4.2 Referral information is reviewed as soon as possible, and at the latest within the first ten full days of the service user commencing attendance, to ensure there are comprehensive details of the matters set out in Standard 2.4.
- 4.3 The assessments are updated, as necessary, signed and dated by the service user, the member of staff responsible for its review and the registered manager. Where the service user is unable or chooses not to sign any document, this should be recorded and the basis of his or her agreement to participate noted.
- 4.4 Assessments are kept under continual review, amended as changes occur and kept up to date to accurately reflect at all times the needs of the service user.

Care plan

Standard 5: Each service user has an individual and up to date comprehensive care plan.

Criteria

5.1 The service user is encouraged and enabled to be involved in the person-centred care planning process, but when he or she is unable to, or chooses not to, this is recorded. The care planning process should involve other relevant professionals and disciplines and, where safe and appropriate, the views of others who have an interest in the service user's well-being.

5.2 An individual comprehensive care plan is drawn up as the assessment of the service user's needs is carried out, and includes details of:

- Any personal outcomes sought by the service user;
- How information about the service user's living arrangements and lifestyle is used to inform practice;
- The daily care, support, opportunities, services and facilities provided to the service user;
- How specific needs and preferences of the individual are to be met by the service, including any outreach activity and how it will be managed;
- The service user's daily and weekly programme;
- The management of any identified risks (including how any safeguarding concerns to or for the service user should be addressed) involved in the delivery of care and support to the service user;
- Directions for the use of any equipment used to assist the delivery of care;
- The administration of, or assistance with, the management of medicines (Standards 29 to 32);
- Transport arrangements to and from the service, which are aimed at maximising independence;

- Strategies or programmes to manage specified behaviours, where appropriate, in line with current best practice and relevant policies and procedures (Standard 6);
- Progress against objectives and expected outcomes is being achieved, with revised objectives, outcomes and time frames as appropriate; and
- How moving on from or leaving the day service will be managed.

5.3 The care plan is signed and dated by the service user, the member of staff responsible for drawing it up and the registered manager. Where the service user is unable or chooses not to sign any document, this should be recorded and the basis of his or her agreement to participate noted.

5.4 The care plan is made available to the service user in a language and format suitable for him or her.

5.5 The care plan is presented at the service user's care review meetings, modified if necessary and agreed to by those attending.

5.6 The care plan is kept up to date and reflects the service user's current needs. Where changes are made to the care plan the service user, member of staff making the changes and the registered manager sign and date the revised care plan. Where the service user is unable or chooses not to sign any document, this should be recorded and the basis of his or her agreement to participate noted.

5.7 When there are:

- Behaviours likely to pose a risk for the service user or others;
- Specific management or supervisory arrangements;
or
- Restrictions on choice arising from a risk assessment;

these are highlighted for those who have authorised access to the service user's care plan.

Responding to service users' behaviour.

Standard 6: Responses to service users are appropriate and based on an understanding of individual service user's conduct, behaviours and means of communication.

Criteria

- 6.1 Staff have knowledge and understanding of each individual service user's usual conduct, behaviours and means of communication, and responses and interventions of staff promote positive outcomes for service users.
- 6.2 Each service user's right to develop and maintain personal relationships with people of his or her choice is respected, unless a service user is assessed as lacking the capacity to consent to such a relationship. If such a situation occurs, information and guidance is sought from the local HSC Trust on ensuring his or her protection.
- 6.3 When a service user's behaviour is uncharacteristic and causes concern, staff respond sensitively, provide appropriate reassurance and report the matter to the registered manager or person in charge at the time. The person in charge ensures the situation is monitored and, where necessary, makes contact with any relevant professional or service, the RQIA and the service user's carer, where appropriate.
- 6.4 When a service user needs a consistent approach or response from staff, this is detailed in his or her care plan. Where appropriate, the service user's representative is informed of the approach or response to be used.
- 6.5 When a service user has a specific behaviour management programme, this is approved by an appropriately trained professional and forms part of the care plan.

- 6.6 When a behaviour management programme is in place for any service user, staff are provided with the necessary training, guidance and support.
- 6.7 Where any incident is managed outside the scope of a service user's care plan, this is recorded and reported if appropriate to the service user's representative and relevant professionals or services, and followed by a multi-disciplinary review of the service user's care plan.
- 6.8 Restraint and seclusion should be used only for controlling violent behaviour or to protect the service user or other persons; and then only as a last resort when other less restrictive strategies have been unsuccessful. Any intervention used is proportionate to the risk of harm; and any situation that led to use of restraint or seclusion is subject to multi-disciplinary review, with a view to avoiding the need for such intervention in the future. Records are kept of all instances when restraint or seclusion is used, and of the review of their use.¹⁰
- 6.9 Details of any instance where restraint is used, including the circumstances and nature of the restraint used, should be notified to the RQIA as soon as is practicable.

Individual service user records and reporting arrangements

Standard 7: Records are kept on each service user's situation, actions taken by staff and reports made to others.

Criteria

- 7.1 The legal and an ethical duty of confidentiality in respect of service users' personal information is maintained, where this does not infringe the rights of other people.¹¹
- 7.2 A service user and, with his or her consent, another person acting on his or her behalf should normally expect to see his or her case records/notes.¹²
- 7.3 A record of all requests for access to individual case records/notes and their outcomes should be maintained.
- 7.4 Individual case records/notes (from referral to closure) related to activity within the day service are maintained for each service user, to include:
- Assessments of need (Standards 2 & 4); care plans (Standard 5) and care reviews (Standard 15);
 - All personal care and support provided;
 - Changes in the service user's needs or behaviour and any action taken by staff;

¹¹ The DHSSPS Code of Practice on Protecting the Confidentiality of the Service User Information (2009) provides practical guidance to assist decision-making about the disclosure of personal information and the legal context in Northern Ireland in relation to confidentiality and disclosure. It can be accessed at: <http://www.dhsspsni.gov.uk/confidentiality-code-of-practice0109.pdf>

Guidance for staff when dealing with service user information is available at: <http://www.dhsspsni.gov.uk/staff-guidance-on-confidentiality0109.pdf>

¹² There may be legitimate reasons for limiting a service user's access to his or her notes. For example, if any part of the record contains confidential information about other people; information was provided by another person or agency (such as a doctor or other professional) and their permission to share it has not been obtained; or a care professional thinks access to the information would cause serious harm to the service user's or someone else's physical or mental well-being.

- Changes in objectives, expected outcomes and associated timeframes where relevant;
- Changes in the service user's usual programme;
- Unusual or changed circumstances that affect the service user and any action taken by staff;
- Contact with the service user's representative about matters or concerns regarding the health and well-being of the service user;
- Contact between the staff and primary health and social care services regarding the service user;
- Records of medicines;
- Incidents, accidents, or near misses occurring and action taken; and
- The information, documents and other records set out in Appendix 1.

7.5 When no recordable events occur, for example as outlined in Standard 7.4, there is an entry at least every five attendances for each service user to confirm that this is the case.

7.6 There is guidance for staff on matters that need to be reported or referrals made to:

- The registered manager;
- The service user's representative;
- The referral agent; and
- Other relevant health or social care professionals.

7.7 All records are legible, accurate, up to date, signed and dated by the person making the entry and periodically reviewed and signed-off by the registered manager.

Service users' involvement

Standard 8: Service users' views and comments shape the quality of services and facilities provided by the service.¹³

Criteria

- 8.1 The values underpinning the standards inform the philosophy of care, and staff consistently demonstrate the integration of these values within their practices.
- 8.2 Service users are enabled to be involved in and given opportunities to influence the running of the service. This will require the establishment of forums or systems whereby service users can be consulted about and express their views about, for example:
- The running of the service;
 - The quality of the service and the care, support, opportunities and facilities, including the outreach and contracted in activities, it provides;
 - Suggestions made for improvement, compliments given, issues raised, general complaints made and the management response to these;
 - Programmes and activities provided;
 - Planning the menu and any policy on takeaway foods;
 - The development and review of policies and procedures generally and service information guides;
 - The recruitment and selection of staff; and
 - The development of plans for future services.
- 8.3 A record is kept of the matters raised by service users and actions taken in response.

¹³ Guidance on Strengthening Personal and Public Involvement in Health and Social Care can be accessed at: <http://www.dhsspsni.gov.uk/userinvolvement.pdf>

- 8.4 Service users' views and opinions about the running of the service are sought on a formal basis at least once a year, preferably by an organisation or person independent of the service.
- 8.5 A report is prepared that identifies the methods used to obtain the views and opinions of service users, which incorporates the comments made and issues raised by service users and any actions to be taken in response. A copy of this report is made available to service users.
- 8.6 Service users are consulted about organised visits to the service by professionals, elected representatives or members of the public.

- 15.2 The service provider participates in review meetings organised by the referral agent responsible for the service user's placement in the day care setting.
- 15.3 The initial review should take place within 4 weeks of the commencement of the placement; thereafter reviews should take place at the times or intervals specified in the care plan, or in response to changing circumstances, or at the request of service users or other persons, including carers, or agencies involved in their care. As a minimum, a formal review should take place once a year; however reviews must not become a "routine" or "administrative" task.

Management of the day care setting

Day care settings are expected to have an open, respectful, safe and participatory culture, with evidence that service users' views and comments have been sought and taken into account, and where the management style reflects the values underpinning these standards.

Within day care a range of complex and diverse issues may have to be managed and there must be effective management systems and processes in place to facilitate its smooth running. Managers are role models for staff and need to provide leadership, direction and support for their teams. When staff teams are properly guided and supported, staff development is encouraged and learning is shared, effective services will be delivered to service users.

The manager should be in control of all the day care setting's operations, but in larger organisations, where he or she does not have control of specific support services, for example transport, estates, finance and personnel, the registered person nominated on behalf of the organisation is responsible for ensuring the relevant standards are met.

This report summarises any views of service users ascertained about the quality of the service provided, and any actions taken by the registered person or the registered manager to ensure that the organisation is being managed in accordance with minimum standards.
- 17.11 The quality of services provided is evaluated on at least an annual basis and follow-up action taken. Key stakeholders are involved in this process.
- 17.12 All legally required certificates and licences are kept up to date and displayed if required, and are accessible for the purpose of inspection.

- 17.17 There is a written policy on “whistle blowing” and written procedures that identify to whom staff report concerns about poor practice.²³
- 17.18 There are appropriate mechanisms to support staff in reporting concerns about poor practice.
- 17.19 The registered person has arrangements in place to ensure that:
- All necessary pre-employment checks are carried out;

Suitability of the premises - new buildings and extensions

The following set of requirements (N1 – N45) applies to new buildings that require to be registered as day care setting and new extensions to any existing registered day care setting.

Premises and grounds

- N1. The building and grounds are designed to comply with all relevant legislation and guidance documents. Certificates and commissioning documents with regard to engineering services and plant, approval letters and letters certifying completion of works and arrangements from other agencies and authorities confirm this.
- N2. There are suitable car parking arrangements for service users, visitors and staff.
- N3. There is clear access to and egress from the setting for emergency and other vehicles, and there are suitably sized turning spaces for service vehicles using the site.
- N4. There are areas for service users to get on and off transport safely that are illuminated and offer some protection against the elements.
- N5. Where the day care setting's programme includes outdoor therapeutic and leisure opportunities, the space is accessible to all service users. In settings registered to provide services to people with dementia, there is a secure perimeter.
- N6. Front entrance doors are semi-automatic as a minimum and in facilities where people need assistance with walking or use wheelchairs, consideration should be given to having doors in activity areas fitted with hold open devices or that are free-swing and linked to the fire alarm.
- N7. The doorways in activity areas used by service users have a clear opening width of at least 800mm, but in settings where service users need assistance when walking or use

- wheelchairs, wider doorways are recommended. Corridor doors have vision panels and in day care settings where service users need assistance when walking or using wheelchairs, there are level access thresholds at all doors.
- N8. The minimum corridor width is 1.2m unobstructed between handrails, but in day care settings where service users need assistance when walking or use wheelchairs a minimum width of between 1.5m and 1.8m is recommended.
- N9. All activity areas are accessible to service users through the provision, where necessary, of ramps, lifts (large enough to accommodate a stretcher), other facilities and signage.
- N10. According to the service user groups offered services in the day care setting, there are suitably positioned hand and grab rails, hoists, communication aids and other equipment, including assistive technology, which meet the general needs of the service user group and promote independence in all the areas accessed or used by service users.
- N11. According to the service user groups offered services in the setting, service user/staff call points, accessible to service users are provided in areas where service users are likely to be alone, toilets and washrooms. These are linked to a system that alerts staff a call is being made or assistance is required.
- N12. There is both natural and good quality artificial lighting in all areas suitable for the needs of service users and any activities organised in each room. The artificial lighting in areas used by service users is sufficiently bright and positioned to facilitate activities. The recommended lighting level in toilets is between 100 – 200 lux.
- N13. All activity areas used by service users are naturally ventilated, have opening windows with safety glazing and guarding where necessary. Window openings are controlled to a safe point of opening of no more than 100mm and cannot be overridden by service users. Frosted or obscured glass is fitted as required to ensure privacy.

- N14. The heating system can be controlled within safe limits for the service users' comfort in areas accessed and used by them, and is able to provide a range of temperatures throughout the setting.
- N15. Furniture and fittings are suitably designed for the activities that take place in the room, and incorporate ergonomic design principles that promote user independence and safe handling. They, and any equipment or mobility aids, are positioned to take into account the mobility and overall needs of the service users, including those with sensory impairments.
- N16. Floor coverings and wall finishes are suitable for the purpose of each room and meet health and safety and infection control requirements. Finishes that produce glare, dazzle and optical illusions are avoided, and where service users use wheelchairs floor coverings have non-directional pull. According to the service user groups offered services in the day care setting, for example those with a visual impairment, changes in the texture of floor coverings or other indicators should be considered to identify key areas in the setting, for example doorways or the top or bottom of stairs.

Space for activities

- N17. The minimum space per service user (excluding corridors and circulation areas) is 4.5m² in general activity areas, except for computer suites where 3.0m² is adequate. Where service users have high dependency needs, a minimum space of 7.5 m² is recommended.
- N18. Having a range of size of rooms provides flexibility for organising activities and where the varied needs of service users can be met. According to the service user groups offered services in day care setting, this can include:
- A room where meetings can take place;
 - A facility for service users to make or get drinks and snacks;

- A quiet room with something suitable to rest on; and
- A room where telephone calls can be made or received in private.

N19. The design of the dining space takes into consideration the number of service users who can eat comfortably together at one time. The space required for dining is at least 1.5 m² per person, but where service users have high dependency needs the space will be greater.

Toilet and washing facilities

N20. There are separate toilets for ambulant males and females, at least one wheelchair accessible unisex toilet that complies with part R of the Building Regulations and a toilet facility identified for visitors.

Toilets for people who use a wheelchair and require the assistance of two people are a minimum of 5.5m² and at least 2m long.

N22. Where the day care setting provides personal care there is an adequate number of bath and shower facilities.

Bathrooms for ambulant people, people who require assistance and people who use a wheelchair independently are a minimum of 8.5m².

Bathrooms for people who require the use of a hoist are a minimum of 16m².

- N26. There is hand-washing equipment (wash hand basins, liquid soap dispensers, paper towels and pedal operated bins) in areas where care is provided.
- N27. Approved containers are provided in all areas of the setting that are suitable for the type of waste generated.
- N28. Wheeled bins for clinical waste are provided that allow for 'single handling' of the waste in a secure outside area.

Sluice rooms

- N29. Where provided, sluice rooms are located away from areas where food is stored, prepared, cooked or eaten.

Premises and grounds

- E1. The building and grounds are designed to comply with all relevant legislation and to a reasonable degree with guidance documents. Certificates and commissioning documents with regard to engineering services and plant, approval letters and letters certifying completion of works and arrangements from other agencies and authorities confirm this.
- E2. Car parking spaces are available unless the location and site of the day care setting prevent this.
- E3. Emergency and other vehicles have clear access to and egress from the day care setting.
- E4. There are illuminated areas for service users to get on and off transport safely that, where possible, provide protection against the elements.
- E5. Where there is outdoor space for therapeutic and leisure activities, this is safe and accessible to all service users. In day care settings registered to provide services to people with dementia, there is a secure perimeter.
- E6. RQIA approve the width of doorways and corridors so that all areas accessed or used by service users are accessible to them through the provision of, where necessary, ramps, passenger lifts, other facilities and signage.
- E7. According to the service user groups offered services in the day care setting, there are suitably positioned hand and grab rails, hoists, communication aids and other equipment, including assistive technology, to meet the general needs of the service user group and to promote independence in all activity areas.

- E9. All areas used by service users have either opening windows with safety glazing and guarding where necessary, or have mechanical ventilation. Window openings are controlled to a safe point of opening of not more than 100mm and cannot be overridden by service users. Frosted or obscured glass is fitted as required to ensure privacy.
- E10. The heating system can be controlled within safe limits for the service users' comfort in areas accessed and used by them, and is able to provide a range of temperatures throughout the day care setting.
- E11. Furniture and fittings are suitably designed for the activities that take place in the room and incorporate ergonomic design principles that promote user independence and safe handling. They, and any equipment or mobility aids, are positioned to take into account the mobility and overall needs of the service users, including those with sensory impairments.
- E12. Floor coverings and wall finishes are suitable for the purpose of the room and meet health and safety and infection control requirements. Finishes that produce glare, dazzle and optical illusions are avoided and where reasonably possible, where service users use wheelchairs floor coverings have non-directional pull. According to the service user groups offered services in the day care setting, for example those with a visual impairment, changes in the texture of floor coverings or other indicators should be considered to identify key areas in the day care setting, for example doorways or the top or bottom of stairs.

Space for activities

- E13. RQIA approves the space used by service users. Where reasonably possible, the space required for activity per service user (excluding corridors and circulation areas) is 4.5m² in general activity areas, except for computer suites where 3.0m² is adequate. Where service users have high dependency needs, a minimum space of 7.5 m² is recommended.

Toilet and washing facilities

- E16. Where reasonably possible, the day care setting has separate toilets for ambulant males and females and at least one wheelchair accessible unisex toilet, that complies with part R of the Building Regulations and a toilet identified for visitors.
