OT increases service user independence and functioning in everyday activities through clinical interventions and/or the provision of specialist equipment and/or environmental adaptation

Occupational Therapy can help you with:

Housing adaptations

Specialist equipment

Learning new skills

Falls

Sensory processing

Activities, routines
& hobbies

Things that are important to you are important to Occupational Therapy
– OUR aim is to ENABLE YOU

Why are sensory needs important?

Our sensory system involves what we see, hear, feel, taste and smell

Individuals can sometimes experience, interpret and react to (or ignore) information coming from our senses differently

A sensory assessment can be completed as part of the OT assessment if required

How do you access our service?

We are part of the team for Adult Learning Disability

We accept referrals through all team members including social worker, behaviour support team, day centres, short break facilities and Allied Health Professionals

We need your help!
